President's Corner

Joan C. Gallagher, LPC, NCC, M.Ed.
LCDA President

Greetings, Everyone!
I am pleased to introduce myself as your new LCDA President and I'd like to share a little of my background. I am a native of Philly, where I also earned my bachelor's degree in Psychology at LaSalle University. I relocated with my husband to New Orleans where I later earned a Master of Education in Educational Leadership and Counseling at the University of New Orleans. My practice of over 20 years in the field of career exploration and employment services has been quite exciting as I have worked for the Louisiana Department of Labor, Catholic Charities Job Search Program, and in three university career centers including Tulane, Loyola and LSU, where I currently serve as Associate Director for Career Services. I have experience working with clients age 15 through 80 and enjoy each new client, seeing my work with them as a mutual adventure. It has been my privilege to accompany them on their career journey and I am constantly thrilled at their ability to discover and harness their potential and launch their careers.

This year, I hope to journey with you, my colleagues in the field, as we prepare our clients to meet the issues and challenges of today's workplace with the knowledge and confidence that will lead to their success and ours.

My goals for the year include bringing information and professional development opportunities to all LCDA members, enhancing our relationships with other LCA divisions including LSCA, LCCA, LMHCA and others. I also hope to strengthen ties to the National Career Development Association by encouraging members to join and by sharing NCDCA resources with you.

As LCDA president, I attended the 2010 International NCDCA conference in San Francisco and was able to network with other state CDA presidents and swap ideas about how our organizations can grow to be an even more vibrant CDA's. In addition, the conference presentations were first rate, and the opportunity to connect with friends and colleagues in the field was outstanding. LCDA members were able to meet for breakfast as a group and it was fun to connect names and faces from across the state. And of course, San Francisco was such a beautiful city in which to hold the conference. Casual groups of us enjoyed lunch overlooking the Pacific Ocean, dinner in Chinatown, Fisherman's Wharf, and even a Giants baseball game! Next year's conference is planned for San Antonio, and if you can go, definitely do it!

If you have any questions, news, or ideas you would like to share, please e-mail me at jgallag@lsu.edu or call 225-578-1548. I look forward to hearing from you and hopefully meeting you soon!

LCDA MEMBERSHIP

We would like to focus our efforts this year on increasing our LCDA membership. We will be exploring ways to reach out to extend membership to others in the field and need your help. At $10.00, membership is an excellent bargain. Why not invite your colleagues to join? Or consider offering membership in LCDA as a holiday gift for your career counseling intern. What a great way to help someone else improve their professional identity!

GOVERNORS PROCLAMATION

Governor Bobby Jindall, at the request of LCDA, has declared that November is Career Month in Louisiana. We are calling on you to focus attention on careers at your workplace during November. Many of us may already be planning career events at that time, but I would like to challenge you to consider what we can do to alert our clients and students to the tremendous value of career exploration and career development. Please share your ideas on the LCDA blog. Ashley Allen is our blog editor, so please send her your posts and she will get them onto the blog.

Some ideas might include hosting a field trip to visit employers; bring in a panel of guest speakers from different career paths; require that students do a job shadowing experience in a field of interest; or conduct a workshop on new careers in federal government. You might refresh your own knowledge base by setting aside a little time that month to scope out some new career web sites or read one of the suggested books listed in “Tools of the Trade.” What creative ideas do you have? Please let Ashley know, so she can post them to the blog, at ashleyallen82@yahoo.com

Colleague Connection

The NCDA conference was held in San Francisco this past June 30-July 2 entitled A Bridge to a Brighter Future...Inspiring Careers Empowering Lives! After speaking to several colleagues that attended, we can assure you that the conference certainly lived up to its title. Set against the backdrop of the magical city of San Francisco, the content sessions and keynote speakers were engaging and informative enough to make you forget that the weather was sunny and 68 degrees outside. Every imaginable setting and clientele of career counseling was covered including sessions to address career counselors own goals and work life balance.

The keynote speakers carried the theme of inspiring careers by delivering outstanding presentations. Dr. Beverly Kaye, the author of numerous career enrichment books, reminded us about the importance of job enrichment and the "Power of Purpose". Equally exciting, was shaking hands with the charismatic Jason Dorsey who entertained and informed us about Gen Y. Just being in the presence of thousands of career professionals from around the world was empowering.

The NCDA conference continued to live up to its title by serving as a networking bridge. Sharon Walker organized a breakfast for all Louisiana attendees and as a result, we formed some new relationships with career professionals in our hometown. As career counselors, we all emphasize the power of networking to our clients ...yet how many of us take the time to practice what we preach?

The 2010 NCDA conference certainly lived up to its title and the image of the bridge in the background of the title was quite appropriate. Our work as career counselors is often like that of a bridge...spanning the distance with clients who are transitioning from one place to another. The bridge must have a strong foundation and the NCDA conference certainly provided us with opportunities to strengthen our friendships with colleagues as well as our professional development.

The 2011 NCDA conference will be held in San Antonio, Texas on June 30 – July 2. The theme will be "Celebrating our Past: Achieving our Dreams." Don't miss out on this opportunity to celebrate and connect with other career professionals.

Tools of the Trade

Joan Gallagher recommends:

More Than Listening, A Casebook for Using Counseling skills in Student Affairs Work by Ruth Harper, Nona L. Wilson, and Associates, 2010, published by the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators. Available at <http://bookstore.naspa.org>

This book includes a chapter on theories of higher education administration for counselors practicing in colleges and universities and also includes a chapter for those who are trained in higher education administration but lack counseling skills. One chapter is devoted to a case study of a career counseling client.

CDDQ – <http://kivunim.huji.ac.il/cddq/>
The Career Decision-Making Difficulties Questionnaire, a free resource developed by Itamar Gati, is designed to help clients clarify their career decision-making difficulty and provides a 3 step process for systematic career decision-making.

Sharon Walker recommends:

Love It Don't Leave It-26 Ways to Get What You Want at Work by Beverly Kaye and Sharon Jordan, published by Berrett-Koehler Publishers, Inc., San Francisco. Beverly Kaye presented a keynote address at the recent NCDA conference in San Francisco and used this book as her reference. It is a great book for helping you get job satisfaction where you are instead of leaving your current job. One notable quote: "Most people we know are not unhappy because of the skills they are using—but because of the skills they are not using."
